The data collected via the "HyperMotion" technology also powers the "Dynamic Player" feature, whereby players react to different challenges by moving themselves in the optimal way to defend against the opposition, anticipate the opposition and commit to attacking plays. "What sets the 'HyperMotion' feature apart from its predecessor is it captures the essence of gameplay," said Aaron McHardy, Global Brand Director for FIFA. "Using this technology to combine the movements of all 22 players in FIFA is like having a camera inside the action from the sidelines. It gives you an insight into how the game will feel in real life." The "Dynamic Player" feature offers realistic, reactive and authentic AI behaviors that players adopt depending on the situation on the pitch. The development team also completed a number of significant improvements to the "Ball and Physics" module, such as "3D Player Trajectory Optimization," which increases the speed and accuracy with which a player can move to a ball, and "Pass Occlusion," which stops the player tracking a player when he collides with him. Epstein-Barr virus-associated adult T-cell leukaemia and lymphoma in Indonesia: a new clonal variant. The epidemic of human T-cell lymphotropic virus type I (HTLV-I) infection is increasing in some tropical countries. The incidence of adult T-cell leukaemia/lymphoma (ATLL) varies between 4.4 and 50/100,000 per year. Our aim was to study the epidemiology of ATLL in Indonesia. ATLL is of clonal origin, with viral sequences from the latency II promoter (LT2) conserved during progression to ATLL. All the Indonesian HTLV-I infected subjects had a HTLV-I proviral load >10(4) copies/10(6) peripheral blood mononuclear cells (PBMC), as opposed to the HTLV-I-negative subjects, with

A former Chatham police sergeant arrested Wednesday on the charge of driving drunk and with a suspended license got a deal for a lesser charge: Failure to appear in court. But he still may get jail time. Michael E. Heidbreder, 46, of South Chatham, was charged with a misdemeanor count of failure to appear in court when he appeared in Chatham Superior Court on Jan. 23. On that date, court records show, he was sentenced to 364 days in the House of Correction for violating the conditions of his suspended license. He has 17 prior convictions. Heidbreder, who has since been terminated from the department, is still on probation. On May 17, however, he was charged by the Chatham police with driving while intoxicated. He was released on $1,000 personal recognizance bond and must wear an ignition interlock device on his car. If convicted, he faces a fine of up to $1,000 and a 6-month license suspension, court records show. Heidbreder's attorney, Edward Stone, said Thursday that the Chatham police arrested the defendant following a traffic stop, and he was charged with DWI. Stone said he filed a motion to suppress the evidence in Chatham Superior Court. The motion was withdrawn, and the case was moved to New London Superior Court. "This is a first offense for Mr. Heidbreder," Stone said. "This is not the first time he was ever accused of driving under the influence. He was arrested on Dec. 15, 2006." Stone said the Chatham police "arrested Mr. Heidbreder in Chatham on the basis of a police report. There is no evidence that the Chatham police ever had any contact with Mr. Heidbreder." Stone said he has written
