Navigation menuQ: C#: How to write a for loop that returns a boolean instead of I am currently working on a project which will be running a.exe file and then be displayed inside a form. The program at the moment will write to a file, and then download the information inside the file to the form. I'm trying to create a for loop that checks the file each time it is run, but returns a Boolean value. How would I write something like: for (;;) { if (DoStuff()) { return true; } } EDIT: Looking for advice on how to use the if statement. A: Simple: return false instead of true. For for (;;) { if (DoStuff()) { return true; } } change to: for (;;) { if (DoStuff()) { return false; } } Edit: For what you've described, it's not clear if you actually need a loop at all, since if DoStuff() returns false, you want to quit immediately. If DoStuff() will actually block indefinitely, then you might be better off using a while loop instead of a for loop. [Doppler-guided bladder neck occlusion during video-assisted radical prostatectomy]. Doppler guidance is useful for visualization of the anatomical landmarks and effective decision for the degree of occlusion of the prostatic pedicles during the video-assisted radical prostatectomy. In the patients having a small prostatic volume (less than 50 ml), ultrasonography is the most useful method for the detection of the anatomical landmarks. On the other hand, in the patients having a large prostatic volume (more than 100 ml), the prostatic pedicles can be not clearly detected by ultrasonography, and a Doppler guidance is useful for the detection. During the video-assisted radical prostatectomy, complete occlusion of the prostatic pedicles should be carried out. In order to prevent urethro-bladder anastomotic leak and dysuria, Doppler guidance
