from below. Octreotide for the prevention of pancreatic fistula after distal pancreatectomy. Pancreatic fistula is a frequent complication of distal pancreatectomy. It is associated with increased morbidity and mortality. The aim of this study was to evaluate the efficacy of octreotide in reducing the incidence of pancreatic fistula after distal pancreatectomy. A total of 162 consecutive patients undergoing distal pancreatectomy (open or laparoscopic) at the University of Rome "Tor Vergata" Department of General Surgery during the period from January to March 2012 were evaluated retrospectively. Patients were divided into two groups according to the treatment with octreotide (group 1) or without octreotide (group 2). Fisher's exact test was used for statistical evaluation. There were no differences in clinical characteristics between groups. Octreotide was administered in three divided doses (4, 6, and 8 hours) intraoperatively. Octreotide significantly reduced the incidence of pancreatic fistula (8.7 vs.
